But it helps to grow a saving money mentality. NerdWallet has identified some of the leading money back apps. To narrow out, we found apps in the iOS App Store that have money back to search for. We also need at least 25,000 reviews and a rating of 4.25 stars or better. These apps are also available for Android devices on Google Play.1. IbottaIbotta promises a money back, whether you're shopping in person, online, or traveling or dining out. There are no promotional codes or coupons to follow. Search the app for the bids you want, then upload or buy a photo of your receipt after you purchase customer card or a supported debit card application. User reviews: Ibotta users have complained about having to watch a video to open a discount, or having trouble matching the exact item purchased for a specific deal. Still, with nearly a million comments, Ibotta remains the most popular money back app in the iOS store - although competition is becoming land. Best for: Money back in a wide variety of shopping options.2. Fetch RewardsFetch Rewards Rewards discounts are one of those competitors that closes the Ibotta gap, popularity and especially when it comes to grocery saving. Pull from the receipt and earn redeemable points for gift cards. User reviews: Pull fans as an app easy, but some are balked at the 14-day limit to submit receipts. Best for: redemption of grocery receipts for points applied to different bonuses.3. RetailMeNotOne of the original money back apps born on the website, RetailMeNot, is primarily a coupon finder, but allows users to activate online offers, or download receipts and scan barcodes for discounts. User reviews: Some shoppers have been using this app for years and brag about their simplicity and location-based discount discovery. Best for: Store discounts by location. MORE: 7 best money making apps4. The GetUpsideThis app is designed to offer cash-back deals at grocery stores and restaurants and, perhaps the most important, gas stations. User reviews: How to make money from gas purchases appeal to many users, although some complain about the limited number of gas stations that participate in some areas. The new check-in with the saved credit card feature has been replaced by receipts uploaded at participating stations and filled with mixed reactions from users. Best for: Money back for gasoline purchases. We kept ourselves off this list - but it's a no-brainer to earn extra money back from our free app.5. Coupons.comManaging grocery coupons are a specialty Coupons.com app. Once you have selected a coupon, discounts will be applied automatically by linking the store to the loyalty card app. If you buy in a store without a loyalty program, you can submit a photo of your paper receipt. When you approve, the refund will be applied to PayPal your account. User Reviews: In recent months, users have reported technical problems with printing coupons. Developers recommend using the app's digital coupon feature. Best for: Tapping rewards related to grocery loyalty programs.6. DoshDosh adds hotels to the discount mix for the dining and dining options. By linking a credit or debit card to an app, money back offers are deposited in Dosh's wallet. Cash can then be transferred to bank PayPal or Venmo. Bonuses can also be donated to non-profit charities. User reviews: App Store reviewers like the fact that there's no need to get a money back, but some are not fans of maintenance fees, which are probably taken from inactive users. Purchases must also be made instead of debiting transactions. Best for: earn automatic discounts without scanning receipts.7. Receipt HogIn addition to offering money back shopping, this app gamifies the process of raffles, bonuses and Hog Slots spins that can be withdrawal coins. Bonuses can also be redeemed by Amazon gift cards or money from your PayPal account. You can even customize the dress (and buy outfits) with your Receipt Hog avatar. User reviews: Receipt Hog lovers enjoy lotteries and generally say the app is easy to use. Some users are so caught up in the fun of this app that the change in pig icon appearance was discussed. Best for: Adding an element of fun money back rewards.8. CoinOutCoinOuting does not charge fees and does not require financial information, CoinOut is another receipt scanning money back app. You don't have to buy a specific retailer, find a coupon or hunt a deal, either. The receipt will be uploaded and the application will do the rest. User reviews: Many recent user reviews complain about small payouts. Best for: Get money back from savings without looking for specific retailers.
